Developed for the National College by Sylva, Chan, Good and Sammons.
Department of Education, University of Oxford (July 2011).
Instructions for use

The leadership rating scale assesses the current quality of leadership and management within children’s centres.

The authors recommend that the pack is completed independently by two or three members of the senior leadership team (SLT), including the centre leader. In order to score accurately, judgements on this rating scale should be based only on existing policies and practices, and not on those that are planned to take place or not yet achieved. The SLT may then meet to compare and discuss the scores, noting and justifying differences between their ratings: this will not only produce a more accurate overall score of current leadership within the centre, but will also allow for the SLT to create action plans for improvement based on those areas that require improvement.

Whilst using this resource pack, think carefully about what further documentation or evidence you may be able to provide in terms of your own evaluation. Provision is made on each page for you to note any future changes that you wish to work on as a centre, or any evidence that you think may need to be collected for future self-evaluation purposes. You may find these action plans useful to feed into your centre development or improvement plans. This resource pack can then be reused again between 6 to 12 months after initial use, to assess changes in leadership style and quality.

It is advisable that this pack is completed ahead of any further training sessions held with staff to allow the current level of quality to be presented to them.

<td>a) There are printed publicity materials on centre services and activities.</td>
<td>e) Printed publicity materials cater for different audiences and also families who speak English as an additional language.</td>
<td>i) A named staff member is responsible for regularly updating all publicity material at least once a term.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>b) There is evidence of consistent branding.</td>
<td>f) Publicity materials are distributed to local families by people who make home visits or by other key multi-agency partners.</td>
<td>j) Centre services and activities are advertised online.</td>

Scoring

1. A single score between 0 and 5 is given for each page of statements, using the instructions below.

2. Your score can be recorded on each page using the top right-hand table for easy reference by circling the appropriate score for each item (see below).

3. An example of this scoring can be found in Figure 1. As you can see, the centre has ticked all of the statements in the ‘adequate’ column. The centre has also ticked all of the statements in the ‘good’ column. However, the centre did not tick all of the statements in the ‘outstanding’ column, so the centre achieves a score of 4.

Please refer to the ‘Examples and notes for clarification’ publication for further information.
Presenting your results

There are a number of ways to record your results on this pack for auditing and data-sharing purposes. The results can be presented in a summary form, allowing average scores for each section to be calculated and presented.

If you would prefer to keep a detailed record of your individual scores on each item (eg, in order to track improvements across time), the detailed record sheets can be used for these purposes. These are not required for completion of this pack, but can prove a useful reference for the future.

Scoring

A single score between 0 and 5 is given for each page of statements, using the instructions below.

- 0 = If there are any crosses in the ‘adequate’ column
- 1 = If all of the ‘adequate’ statements are ticked
- 2 = If all the adequate statements are ticked, but if there are any crosses in the ‘good’ column
- 3 = If all the adequate statements are ticked, and all of the ‘good’ statements are ticked
- 4 = If all the adequate and good statements are ticked, but there are any crosses in the outstanding column
- 5 = If all statements in all three columns are ticked
